How has the Leadership Studies program positively impacted your personal and/or professional life?

I am an incredibly proud graduate of the Leadership Studies program, but I'm even more proud of the information I learned while I was there. Yes, I have earned a promotion at work, but not because I finally have that degree. I secured a promotion at work because the work I did throughout the Leadership Studies program directly impacted and improved my workplace. I am proud of all that I have learned, but prouder still that I chose a program where I could apply all of the information I was learning. I never expected to benefit from being a working student!

How has participation in the program helped you on the job?

Through the program, I gained the skills and the confidence to implement a change at work, which will now save my company over $60,000 a year!

I was finally able to back up my big ideas with the data and know-how to make meaningful change at work. Each time I learned something, I was able to apply that information on the job. That was truly a gift.

What else would you like to share about your experience as a student in the program?

It took me 17 years and four different attempts to finish my degree, and the Leadership Studies program at HSU was finally my perfect fit. I'm so grateful to HSU for having a program like this. It took me a really long time to let go of the pressure of "what I want to do when I grow up" to make way for the things that I wanted to learn and was interested in. I am so deeply grateful to have been able to do some of my learning here in the Leadership Studies program.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT: Daylen Roberts

How has the MSW program positively impacted your personal and/or professional life?

The MSW program has made a positive impact in my life both professionally and personally. Living in a rural area, working full time and being a father is demanding, to the say the least. HSU made it possible for me to advance my learning, pursue my professional goals, and be an example to my community and children. The program was geared from a rural and indigenous perspective, which allowed me to work with a new set of lenses, and be competent in an already complex system.

What were the most memorable growth moments for you during your time in this program?

Doing the things I had to do, in order to do the things I wanted to do. I initially thought systems theory was redundant, and didn't know how to navigate the academic library. It was a lot of work in the beginning, but one of my proudest moments was when everything came together, and it all clicked. By learning to think critically, I allow myself to live in the gray, and accept dualities while denying the absolutes. This allows us to enter helping relationships as the learner, willing to first understand before being understood.

How has participation in this program helped you on the job?

I applied to the Board of Behavioral Science to register as an ASW. I am over halfway through with my clinical hours, which allows me to assess people seeking residential substance abuse and mental health treatment. My county is underserved with a large portion of the clinical professionals reaching retirement. I see endless potential to what I can offer my community.

What else would you like to share about your experience as a student in this program?

I would have never thought that faculty and peers could connect the way we did. I'm in frequent contact with alumni and faculty to this day – not just professionally, but personally. The connections we made on that journey will bond us for life as family.

— Daylen Roberts, MSW Graduate

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT: Melissa Salini

How has the MSW program positively impacted your personal and/or professional life?

The HSU MSW program has helped me to work towards my professional goal of becoming a Licensed Clinical Social Worker serving youth in Sonoma County. My experience in this outstanding program helped me to become more connected to my Indigenous heritage, in addition to deepening my convictions and dedication to social change.

What were the most memorable growth moments for you during your time in the program?

To have the opportunity to weave my dreams of facilitating wilderness therapy with young women of color, here in the Bay Area, as my thesis project. Being granted the opportunity to guide and support young African American women in their social and emotional growth through their connection to nature.

How has participation in the program helped you on the job?

My participation and completion of the HSU MSW program has helped me show up with cultural humility, and the ability to integrate macro and micro perspectives into my clinical social work practice. My most valued learning is to meet youth and families where they are, and through a strength-based lens, in order to support authentic healing and growth.

What else would you like to share about your experience as a student in the program?

My cohort members and faculty were outstanding in every regard! Their fierce passion for social justice and dedication to developing as professionals continues to inspire me in the field!

NICOLE JEAN HILL

FACULTY SPOTLIGHT: Nicole Jean Hill

Nicole Jean Hill is one of the instructors for Digital Communications & Imaging certificate courses. She is a professor of art at Humboldt State University.

What led you to choose photography as your art form?

I started out in photography in high school as the photographer for the school's newspaper. It wasn't until I started college that I gravitated more towards photography as art, versus journalism. I loved the more conceptual approach to the medium that was presented through the fine art context, and was really inspired by the artists that my college professors shared.

You have a variety of subject matter, from mixed martial arts fighters to rural communities and landscapes. What draws you in and catches your eye?

My greatest interest is in landscape work, because I enjoy finding ways to interpret the environment in unexpected ways that can be both beautiful and challenging. But I also sometimes do projects because an opportunity presents itself, and allows me to have unique experiences with people and places that I would otherwise never be a part of.

What do you enjoy most about teaching students new to photography?

I enjoy presenting photography as a multifaceted medium – as personal mementos, documentary records, and a means for personal expression. I love seeing students experiment with different forms of the medium that are out of their comfort zone, and expanding their knowledge of what photography is. Teaching through Extended Education allows me to meet and work with people in our community that I wouldn't otherwise encounter in the traditional classroom environment. These students tend to be really engaged and always have exciting reasons to pursue photography further.

What advice would you give to a student thinking about taking a photography course?

The technical side of photography, from camera functions to software, etc., can seem really daunting at first. But once you learn about and experiment with a few key concepts, it's very possible to be at a place where you can start to think more about subject matter, composition, and overall enjoy the act of making pictures.

What advice would you give a student looking to find their own artistic voice?

I always think it's a good idea to look at a lot of photographers and expose yourself to many different styles of image making. Watching movies and dissecting the way film makers frame images and use formal components – like light and color – are really helpful, too.

Where can people find your work?

My current project has been curating and restoring a collection of images made by Lora Webb Nichols, an early 20th century photographer. There will be an exhibition of the work at the Blue Sky Gallery in Portland, Oregon in April 2021, and a monograph of the work is about to be released. The book is available for preorder at lorawebbnichols.com. I will be back to focusing on my own art practice in 2021, once the Nichols book and exhibition are finished.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT: Mia Wapner

How has the Geospatial Certificate Program positively impacted your personal and/or professional life?

This program had a huge positive impact on my professional life. Because the program is fully online, I was able to work full time and could immediately apply the skills I was learning to my work.

What were the most memorable growth moments for you during your time in this program?

Prior to completing this program, I had taken a couple of intro cartography courses during my undergrad and had done some online training through ESRI. I remember when I first began the HSU online geospatial program, it hit me on how much I was going to learn. There is so much more to GIS than creating maps.

How has participation in this program helped you on the job?

While I was in the program, I was working as a GIS technician, and I was able to immediately apply skills that I was learning in the courses to my day-to-day work. Currently I am teaching an Intro to Geospatial Concepts course myself, and would not be able to do so without the skills and materials provided by the HSU online Geospatial Certificate Program.

What else would you like to share about your experience as a student in the Geospatial Certificate Program?

One thing that I really enjoyed about the program was how applicable all of the activities and discussions were. The instructors kept the content relative to current events, and they were a lot of fun to complete, which is challenging for an online program. The material kept me engaged and excited for each upcoming course. Another thing that stood out to me was how the assignments required acquiring data from free online resources. These are the types of skills that are so helpful in becoming a GIS professional.

— Mia Wapner, graduate, Online Geospatial Certificate

How has the Geospatial Certificate Program positively impacted your personal and/or professional life?

I currently work for a Northern California county and was previously their water resource specialist. In order to be promoted, a college accredited GIS certificate was required, which eventually transformed into more. This certificate has directly affected my career through a positive lens, and I take my problem-solving skills learned in the HSU Geospatial Certificate Program and apply them in my new role as a GIS analyst for local government.

What were the most memorable growth moments for you during your time in this program?

This program changed my perception of the online learning experience. I graduated with a BS in geology about five years ago, and was nervous to go back and even more intimidated by “online learning.” HSU has a well-established and orchestrated online program with motivating professors and staff support. I found that many do not have a conventional path to GIS, which makes for an interesting class culture. There were many moments of mutual excitement, idea sharing, and the realization that the application of GIS transcends multidisciplinary fields.

How has participation in this program helped you on the job?

The program has essentially enhanced my technical arsenal, accompanied with my science and resource management background. As a result of completing the program, I am now a new GIS analyst for local government, and I believe the program has given me fundamentals to propel further personally and professionally.

What else would you like to share about your experience as a student in the Geospatial Certificate Program?

I believe the people make the program at HSU. During my times of frustration through the coursework, I was met with willingness to help and kindness by my professors. The success that we have as students and professionals is a direct result of the encouragement, professionalism and collaboration the HSU program staff exhibits. The Online Geospatial Certificate Program is the place where people can have the growth they seek, to create more opportunities at an affordable price. I have and will continue to recommend the Geospatial Certificate Program to my colleagues and students.

How has the New Designs for Fundraising certificate program positively impacted your personal and/or professional life?

After graduating from HSU with a degree in sociology, I enrolled in the New Designs for Fundraising certificate program. New Designs provided the fundamental tools I needed to enhance my knowledge and professional skills. Since completing the program, I have expanded my own professional organizing business, Another Realm, and launched a women's empowerment network, Redwood Women's Foundation, a 501(c)(3) organization. Together, Another Realm and Redwood Women work in unison to address the unmet needs of women, by providing a platform for increasing the emotional and financial stability of women. (www.redwoodwomensfoundation.com)

What were the most memorable growth moments for you during your time in this program?

My most memorable growth moments include my experiences with Guiamar Hiebert, CFRE, and founding faculty member of the program. Her leadership style and approach to nonprofits set the stage for feeling empowered in this program. She shared some of the challenges she faced in the business and nonprofit realm, and provided resources and advice. I am extremely inspired by her positive words, consistency, and actions. The lasting impact she has made on me is woven into the roots of Redwood Women's Foundation.

How has participation in this program helped you in your work?

Completing this certificate has given me the building blocks I needed to establish a sustainable fundraising and nonprofit model that meets the needs of our clients and foundation. We use the program workbooks on a daily basis in relation to strategic planning, fundraising, board development, program planning and implementation, as well as volunteer management, staff, leadership, team building, and professionalism in the nonprofit sector.

What else would you like to share about your experience as a student in this program?

Participating in this program helped boost my self confidence and challenged me to accomplish my goals, and connect with a community of goal-oriented classmates and professionals. I learned how to successfully run my own business and nonprofit organization.

David Marshak, Emeritus Professor at Seattle University:

One of the most positive and little recognized social phenomena of our times is that youths aged 13-19 are impacting societies all across the globe in the sciences, the arts, and social and political realms at a level unprecedented in modern history. This presentation will introduce you to many of these youths and explain how and why this is happening now.

Online via Zoom. To get the meeting link, please RSVP:

General Information

ACADEMIC STANDING

Students whose cumulative grade-point average is 2.0 or above are considered in good academic standing. Visit our website for more information about academic probation and disqualification.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Students who intend to enroll in a CEEGE degree program must apply through the CSU admissions process. Some certificate programs also require an application. See registration procedures at humboldt.edu/extended/register.

CANCELLED CLASSES

For canceled classes, full refunds for non-credit and Extension courses will be issued automatically.

CONTINUING EDUCATION UNITS (CEU)

The CEU is a nationally-recognized unit of measurement for non-degree educational experiences. Some courses offer CEUs for relicensing or professional development purposes. CEU credit cannot be applied toward degrees.

CREDIT/NO CREDIT GRADING MODE

Students may opt to take some courses on a credit/no credit basis in place of a letter grade. To do so, students must complete the required form at CEEGE before half the course has elapsed.

CREDIT FOR EXTENSION COURSES

The maximum Extension credit which can be accepted by HSU toward a bachelor's degree requirement is 24 units, and not more than 8 units may apply to a master's degree. Disability Resource Center Students with verified temporary or permanent disabilities may be eligible for a variety of academic support services. Please allow two to four weeks to receive a refund. For refund purposes, the drop will be effective as of the date that it is received at Extended Education. See the full drop and refund policy at humboldt.edu/extended/drop.

HOLDS

Holds are placed on student accounts for any debts owed to the university, or for certain non-monetary reasons. These holds will prevent you from registering, receiving grades and transcripts, etc.

ID NUMBERS

HSU will generate a unique nine-digit student identification number. The HSU ID should be used in every HSU correspondence, as a protection from identity theft.

LATE REGISTRATION

Unless otherwise specified in program literature, a $25 late fee will be applied if registration is not received and paid prior to the second class meeting for Extension, OLLI and Special Session courses.
